*The port side of a cruise ship is the left side of the boat. Port is a nautical term that was established by sailors during the 1700s to refer to the side of the ship facing the port, or pier, when the front of the ship was facing out into open water. Many activity rooms, spas and other public areas on a cruise ship will be built along the port side to give passengers a good view of cities and piers where the boat is docked.
